

UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES COMPUTER USE POLICY

Anyone using University Libraries computer workstations agrees to abide by the following policies. University Libraries personnel have the right to refuse access to the computer workstations to anyone at our discretion.

- University Libraries computer workstations are provided for research or class-related use.
- Priority for use is as follows:
 1. UNC students, faculty and staff with a valid UNC ID.
 2. Residents of Colorado's Fourth Congressional District working on research in government information sources.
 3. Students and faculty from other colleges or universities working on research or class-related activities.
 4. Other users, who may be asked to yield computers at any time.
- It is the responsibility of the patron or the patrons' legal guardian to determine suitability of information found on the World Wide Web for patron viewing. University Libraries does not attempt to limit or control patron access to the content of the World Wide Web information being used for research or class-related purposes. Patrons should move to another workstation if they are uncomfortable with the content displayed on adjacent workstations. If you need assistance in finding available workstations please see library staff for assistance.
- Patrons using computer workstations are expected to comply with the following guidelines as well as the University of Northern Colorado Computer, Internet (Web) and Electronic Communication Procedures as detailed at <http://www.unco.edu/it/aboutIT/computingproceduresindex.htm>:
 - For materials that fall under the U.S. copyright law (Title 17, U.S. Code), abide by the law which states that materials obtained may not be "used for any other purpose than private study, scholarship, or research." Please note that most World Wide Web resources are protected by copyright laws.
 - Do not tamper with, damage, or steal equipment, data, or software.
 - Do not use workstations for illegal or criminal activity.
 - Do not seek information on, obtain copies of, or modify files, other data, or passwords belonging to other users.

All patrons are expected to abide by the law and be civil to all other users and library personnel. To do otherwise may result in:

- the termination of your computer session,
- loss of library privileges,
- criminal prosecution or other legal action.